

Letter from Alexander Graham Bell to Mabel Hubbard Bell, June 14, 1891, with transcript

Copy of a letter written by A. Graham Bell to Mabel (Hubbard) Bell 1336 Nineteenth Street, Washington, D. C., Sunday, June 14th, 1891. My darling Mabel:

Here I am at home again while you think I am in Philadelphia.

Daisy and I caught our train — just in time — I left her with Elsie — both as happy as two cooing doves — and came right back to Philadelphia.

Time is going rapidly and the meeting of the Association will be soon. I have come here (1st) to see Mr. McKee of the Assoc. Press — and try and arrange for reports of what we do from day to day in Assoc. Press Dispatches.

2. I want to see all the people at Kendall Green — including your dearly beloved friend of whom you wrote to Mr. Spencer — relieve their fears as to what we are going to do and invite them all personally to come to summer meeting.

3. Flying machines and Prof. Langley.

Will return Tuesday to see how you are and if you are a good little girl — I will run right off on a flying visit — (“the flying Yankee” — with Langley's machine) to Northampton, Boston and New York.

Your loving husband, Alec.
